

The National Workforce Registry Alliance

Supporting the nation's early childhood and afterschool workforce

Which registries across the nation use the Training Organization Recognition Process?

Here is a short summary of the answer!

State	Registry	Explanation of qualification criteria
Alaska	Alaska SEED Registry	All TOR-approved training organizations are automatically approved in Alaska. Organizations are sent a letter and certificate good which states they are approved for 5 years.
Arizona	Arizona Early Childhood Workforce Registry	We are focusing on local face to face PD at this time, but we in Arizona would trust and use any agency on the list from the Alliance.
Idaho	IdahoSTARS	Idaho follows the guidelines set forth by the Alliance.
Iowa	Iowa Child Care Provider Training Registry	We required that each organization submits an application but if it's an organization that has been recognized by the National Workforce Registry Alliance, our review of the application is abbreviated. When the National Workforce Registry Alliance recognizes organizations, Iowa does too, as long as attendance is tracked, and processes are followed.
Nebraska	Nebraska Early Childhood Professional Records (NECPRS)	The Nebraska Department of Education Office of Early Childhood Training Center has two ways that trainings are approved. NDE OEC has developed an Automatically Accepted Organization List that consist of four categories: Accredited College and Universities; Federal and Nebraska State Agencies when specific to early childhood care and education; Nationally recognized organizations; and E-Learning Training. Organizations that are not included on the Automatically Accepted list must go through the Nebraska Early Childhood Professional Records System (NECPRS) Training Approval process to be granted training clock hours.

Nevada	The Nevada Registry	Representatives of the organizations recognized by the Alliance do not have to go through the trainer approval process (they are exempt from having to submit an initial trainer application or meet any trainer renewal requirements). They must still submit their training through our online system for approval, but the trainer approval process is essentially null and void.
Oregon	The Oregon Registry	We are in process of defining how to use this designation in a more systematic way. In general, we accept any training into our system from these organization at an introductory level.
Pennsylvania	Pennsylvania Professional Development Registry	Pennsylvania has a specific application for National Organizations to complete and send to the PD Registry team. They submit one online course for us to review on our rubric. We score the course based on the rubric and if they pass, they can have access to enter courses into the PD Registry.
Texas	Texas Early Childhood Professional Development System	If we see training certificates from organizations on the list, we automatically validate them for our workforce registry
Utah	Utah Registry for Professional Development	The process to apply for Training Approval is streamlined for these organizations.
Wyoming	STARS	If the organization is on the Approved Training Organization list, we approve the organization as a Sponsor and work on getting their classes into the training registry
